CPD information

CPD is the learning and development that a Member undertakes to develop and maintain professional competence to enable them to continue to perform their roles competently. Training activities undertaken need not be accounting related but should be appropriate to your field of work. Verifiable CPD means CPD activities for which there is Verifiable Evidence to support their completion.

Means by which CPD can be verified include:

- i) attendance records, registration forms or confirmation of registration in an activity;
- ii) independent assessment by a competent individual that an activity has occurred;
- iii) confirmation by an instructor, mentor, supervisor or tutor of participation in an activity;
- iv) confirmation by an employer of participation in an in-house program, including firms' CPD logs;
- v) published research work; and
- vi) confirmation by other committee members (or Secretariat) of participation on a Technical Committee.

The following are examples of activities that qualify as CPD:

- Congresses, conferences, forums, conventions, courses, seminars, workshops, lectures and other professional educational activities presented by Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand
- Meetings of Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand or other professional accounting body technical discussion groups
- Appropriate educational activities provided by the member's employer or practice entity, either in-house or externally by individuals or organisations engaged by the employer
- Tertiary courses presented by educational institutions
- Appropriate educational and developmental activities presented under the auspices of academic institutions, commercial establishments or other professional bodies
- Service on technical or research committees under the auspices of Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand, other professional bodies or organisations
- Programmed self-study through a third party provider, including self-study video or audio packages
- Chartered Accountants Program Workshops and examination markings.

Please note:

Of the 120 hours of CPD to be completed over the triennium, at least 90 hours must be verifiable. Of those 90 verifiable hours, for trienniums commencing on or after 1 July 2024, at least 6 hours must pertain to professional ethics. For trienniums commencing prior to 1 July 2024, at least 2 hours must pertain to professional ethics. Up to 30 hours may be achieved by reading professional journals, technical bulletins, etc.

Holders of licences or registrations in a specialist area must ensure that their training complies with the requirements of those registrations and specialisations.
